AVERY M. CARRILLO

Hailing from Jamul, CA, Avery Carrillo is a military spouse with a flexible tool kit of skills developed over years of working with military families and performing volunteer work, as well as his/her early years working as a marketing specialist for Target. In particular, he/she excels at building and leading volunteer teams, most notably in support of pre- and post-deployment Family Day events for large military units at the Brigade level, employing strategic planning, executive coordination and communications skills to produce successful, high-value events in support of military families dealing with the challenges of duty separations.

Avery holds a degree in Business from San Diego State University and is working remotely on a certificate in digital marketing with the Robert M. Smith School of Business at the University of Maryland. He/she hopes to find a flexible, remote role that takes advantage of her marketing strategy skills.

Married to Brigadier General Taylor Carrillo, USA, for over 20 years, they have 3 children, with whom they like to spend time visiting National Parks and being number one fans at their team sports events. BG Carrillo is currently X at (duty station) Z. Avery is also interested in family genealogy and is taking the lead on collaborating with family members to create a family history. He/she looks forward to the challenges of Taylor's larger roles with the Army and supporting the quality of life of military families.

JORDAN CORLISS-JACKSON

A native of Suffolk, VA, Jordan Corliss-Jackson is both a military spouse and a military vet. He/she served as an Army nurse for 7 years at military healthcare facilities at home and overseas but pivoted to becoming the “principal” at home, focusing on homeschooling their son and daughter, with particular expertise in STEM classes. He/she also exercises organizational, communication and leadership skills, volunteering with the Red Cross on post, as well as being heavily involved with Army Emergency Relief (AER). He/she is known for his/her expertise at the unit level in helping spouses new to the military navigate the military healthcare system and other challenges of military family life. Jordan recognizes the importance of the military family in support of the deploying service member and seeks to advocate for and improve family quality of life on post and off.

Jordan holds a BSN from the University of Virginia, in addition to having taken advanced courses at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. He/she is currently laying the groundwork to return to nursing at the VA after his/her homeschooling career draws to a close.

Married to Brigadier General Alex Parks, USA, for over 15 years, they enjoy spending time with their children in any activity involving water sports and competition. BG Parks is currently X at (duty station) Z. Jordan is also a running enthusiast and has set a goal of qualifying for the Marine Corps Marathon within the next 3 years. He/she looks forward to the challenges of Alex’s larger roles with the Army and supporting the quality of life of military families.
